Edinburgh Napier University Security Society (ENUSEC) is a student society interested in all aspects of security. The society was started in 2015 by a small collective of students and staff associated with the excellent cybersecurity courses at Edinburgh Napier University. The goal of the society was, and still is, to provide the students and surrounding cybersecurity practitioners with an outlet for them further their learning and understanding as well as to foster a friendly community. I was the secretary for the society which meant leading meetings, organising events such as conferences and hackathons, and holding AGMs.
